Quick Tip - Site Report Setting (New Website)

Ever run a Site report and not get any data back, too much data gets returned or get data back that just didn't make sense?

There is a setting that you can change that allows you to adjust the radius that the reports use.

If you click on the profile image in the upper left of the page (shown to the left), you will open your Settings. If you then click on DISPLAY, you will see a number of options.

Near site search radius

The one that we are concerned with right now is Near Site Search Radius about half way down the list (shown to the left). By changing this value, you will change the radius (in miles) from the site point that the reports use. If it is too small, you will get little to no data, if it is too large, then you might get way too much data.
